A Moon Story about a father and his daughter...

Astronaut Eugene Cernan flew on the last moon mission, Apollo 17 in 1972. For now, he was the last person to walk on the moon.

Before he left, he wrote his daughter's initials in moon dust. She was nine then. Since the moon does not have windstorms, or rain, her initials may well last for hundreds of years in the lunar dust.

Kids! Here is a cool bookmark. Have someone help you cut it out. Fold it in half and glue together. Then write in your name. It will remind you that reading and saving are fun!
